

TULSA WORLD

Published Every Morning, Including Sunday
BY THE WORLD PUBLISHING CO.

EUGENE LORTON Owner and Publisher
F. O. LARSON Business Manager
OTIS LORTON Managing Editor
J. A. LATTA Chief Editor; Writer
Entered in the Tulsa Post Office as Second Class Mailer

MEMBER OF AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATION

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for reproduction of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper and also the local news published herein.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES—DAILY AND SUNDAY

Domestic	Domestic
One Year $1.00	Three Months $2.00
Six Months $1.75	One Month .75

DAILY ONLY

Domestic	Domestic
One Year $1.50	Three Months $1.50
Six Months $2.75	One Month .75

SUNDAY ONLY

Domestic	Domestic
One Year $2.50	Two Months $1.25

BY CABLE IN TULSA, HAND SPRINGS KENDALL AND RED FOX

per Week	1.18
per Month, in Advance	.78
per Year, in Advance	.99

AVERAGE NET CIRCULATION OF THE TULSA
DAILY AND SUNDAY WORLD FOR THE MONTH
OF NOVEMBER, 1919, WAS 14,889.

T. E. Scott, circulation manager, do solemnly swear that the average net circulation of The Daily and Sunday World for the month of November, 1919, was 24,889, to the best of my knowledge and belief.

T. E. SCOTT,
Circulation Manager.

Subscribed and sworn before me this 21 day of December, 1919.

MABEL KEIM,
Notary Public.

Atchison, Kansas, October 17, 1921.

PHONE 6000 FOR ALL DEPARTMENTS

Daily Biblical Quotation

MONDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1919.

The redeemed of the Lord shall return, and coming with singing unto Zion, and everlasting joy shall be upon their heads; they shall obtain gladness and joy, and sorrow and mourning shall flee away. Isa. 51:14.

Come, ye pilgrims, cease to mourn,
Press onward to the prize;
Soon thy Savior will return
Triumphant in the skies,

Yet a season, and you know
Happy entrance shall be given;

All your sorrows left below,
And earth exchanged for heaven.

God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes,
And all pain be gone; death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former kings are passed away.
And He that sat upon the throne said, Behold,
I make all things new. Rev. 21:4, 5.

GOOD MEN FOR OFFICE

A condition precedent to an improvement in the public service is the election of good men to office. Not merely right thinking men, but men with the courage to stand and fight for what is right; capable of making a minority a majority.

It is fortunate for Oklahoma that men of this character are coming into the political arena. Roy M. Johnson of Ardmore, who is being urged to stand for the senatorial nomination on the republican ticket, is such a man. The Daily Ardmoreite, published in his home town, while considered one of the leading democratic papers of the state, has this to say of him:

Now Roy is the biggest hearted oil man in all Oklahoma. He is the man who would grace the senate chamber of the United States. He is a director of the Ardmoreites and we would be for him. He is a home man and we would be for him. He is a friend to humanity and we would be for him. If Roy would just consent to change his politics the democrats would give him anything he would ask for. We congratulate the republicans of the state upon their wisdom in pushing men like Roy M. Johnson to the front for political preference.

Mr. Johnson has long been identified with the business and political life of Oklahoma, has proven his ability on many fields, and would ornament the public service of any commonwealth.

What has been said of the Johnson senatorial candidacy is equally true of the Mahon congressional candidacy from this district. Mr. Mahon, who lives at Miami, has been identified with Oklahoma affairs since 1908. He has come to be considered the greatest asset of his county. He has served two terms in the state legislature with distinction, having been drafted by his neighbors irrespective of party. His most outstanding characteristic is his rugged Americanism and his conviction that the public funds should be expended with the same careful consideration one applies to one's own business.

There is a better day dawning in American politics when men of the Johnson and Mahon type signify their willingness to put service to country above service to self. And how Oklahoma needs such men!

A medal should go to the family of Arch Hall—the Tulsa citizen who did not hesitate to hit and hit hard in protecting his rights against the despicable stick up. The outlaws have been plying their trade in Tulsa with impunity. Men shot and delivered without protest. And the police have long prided themselves either incapable of grasping with the forces of authority or are indisposed to do so. Hall was a man. He knew, of course, that such characters never strike until they have a ten to one advantage. But he was conscious of his rights. When called upon to stick up the hands he complied. But they went up in response to threats of imprisonment. And they went up shooting. He held with his life. But he settled the matter quickly that knew only to burn in the dark. And in this he performed a splendid service for his town and his fellow yet living. All honor to Arch Hall! He leaves posterity an example to emulate; a name to be proud of!

An anonymous correspondent perpetrated this: "Education makes a ditch digger dissatisfied with his job. Yet there must be ditch diggers. Who's going to dig the ditches when we all are educated?" Pass. Who is?

Sixty prohibitionists in the vicinity of New York are dead from drinking a phonie hooch. Who do we know they were prohibitionists? An experienced palate would have instantly detected the difference.

WHY NOT MUTUAL CREDIT?

The allied nations continue to loan on the United States while confessing their undying affection for the Eagle and his eagle. We are told by gentlemen on both sides of the Atlantic that America must extend still greater credit to the countries of Europe. This may be so, too.

But there are indications, occasionally, that the affection of the allied nations for America does not extend beyond a prudent consideration for what such pretenses may yield in dollars and cents. In short, we are asked to extend credit, but both English and French authorities are unwilling to give us credit. A case in point:

A few days ago General Pershing, in a very modest, matter-of-fact way, said to a gathering of his countrymen that it was America under arms on the battlefields of France that finally forced the Hun to yield.

History will write that precise verdict. Not perhaps, that American fighting men actually bayoneted and bulletted the Germans back across the Hindenburg line and thus forced the armistice, but that it was their presence in support—the proof they gave of their ability to gain ground against the best of Germans, even the imperial guard—that heartened all other sections of the front and enabled the commander in chief to carry out the strategy that broke the will of Germany.

This was exactly what English and French authorities had told us was necessary, as they begged that we rush more and more men across. Every military authority agreed that the final punch must come from America. And it is a notorious fact that England and France confined their whole resources to a mere holding-on process, until the American forces were ready.

And yet the English and French authorities—even the press of both countries—ridiculed Pershing's statement and conceded not a vestige of credit to America's great effort and sacrifice.

The allies, we are being forced to assume, want all they can possibly get from Samuel, but they also want all the glory—every vestige of it—for driving back the German hordes.

As this sinister disposition unfolds itself from day to day there are times when one could almost wish that the stage might be set as it was in July, 1918, that Pershing might have halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

The girl on South Main says she has made up her mind to take no chances on substitutes and for that reason has turned down the last man who proposed to her because he had a tigernish accent of name. His name was Winfield.

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly

crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

The girl on South Main says she has made up her mind to take no chances on substitutes and for that reason has turned down the last man who proposed to her because he had a tigernish accent of name. His name was Winfield.

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly

crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

The girl on South Main says she has made up her mind to take no chances on substitutes and for that reason has turned down the last man who proposed to her because he had a tigernish accent of name. His name was Winfield.

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly

crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

The girl on South Main says she has made up her mind to take no chances on substitutes and for that reason has turned down the last man who proposed to her because he had a tigernish accent of name. His name was Winfield.

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly

crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

The girl on South Main says she has made up her mind to take no chances on substitutes and for that reason has turned down the last man who proposed to her because he had a tigernish accent of name. His name was Winfield.

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly

crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

The girl on South Main says she has made up her mind to take no chances on substitutes and for that reason has turned down the last man who proposed to her because he had a tigernish accent of name. His name was Winfield.

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly

crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

The girl on South Main says she has made up her mind to take no chances on substitutes and for that reason has turned down the last man who proposed to her because he had a tigernish accent of name. His name was Winfield.

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly

crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

The girl on South Main says she has made up her mind to take no chances on substitutes and for that reason has turned down the last man who proposed to her because he had a tigernish accent of name. His name was Winfield.

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly

crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

The girl on South Main says she has made up her mind to take no chances on substitutes and for that reason has turned down the last man who proposed to her because he had a tigernish accent of name. His name was Winfield.

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly

crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

The girl on South Main says she has made up her mind to take no chances on substitutes and for that reason has turned down the last man who proposed to her because he had a tigernish accent of name. His name was Winfield.

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly

crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

The girl on South Main says she has made up her mind to take no chances on substitutes and for that reason has turned down the last man who proposed to her because he had a tigernish accent of name. His name was Winfield.

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly

crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

The girl on South Main says she has made up her mind to take no chances on substitutes and for that reason has turned down the last man who proposed to her because he had a tigernish accent of name. His name was Winfield.

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly

crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

The girl on South Main says she has made up her mind to take no chances on substitutes and for that reason has turned down the last man who proposed to her because he had a tigernish accent of name. His name was Winfield.

After all, the excitement seems to have been over trying to make a life-sized baby boy fit into the description of hand, brown eyes, slightly

crossed, "Billy" Danzer. Another of the mysteries is that the little four-year-old fellow halted all attempts of Chief of Police Anton to get any information from him, which naturally aroused a suspicion that he is the missing "perfect baby."

Secretary Baker believes in rewarding courageous objectors, and Senator Tamm to show that he is no less democratic thinks that moderation should be shown in dealing with the I. W. W.'s.

<p